A total of 350 hours must be devoted to teaching, supplementary teaching and student support service activities for the full-time regime and 200 hours for the part-time regime. For the allocation of teaching duties and the related rights and obligations, reference is made to the current Regulations for the assignment of teaching, supplementary teaching and tutoring duties.

The contract will specify the procedures for carrying out research, teaching, complementary teaching and student support services activities, to be agreed with the Head of Department, in accordance with what is specified in the call for applications.

If the RTT is to carry out his/her activities in a department of the medical field where support and care activities are required, they will be carried out in accordance with the existing agreements with the Autonomous Region of Sardinia and the University Hospital and Clinics.

The holder of the contract will be entitled to a fixed gross annual salary equal to the initial salary of the confirmed permanent researcher, depending on the employment regime chosen. This salary is increased by 25% for the entire duration of the contract, subject to the evaluation of the research and teaching activities carried out by the Department Council at the end of each year.

The social security scheme is the same as that of a permanent researcher, to which the INPS D.S. contribution is added.

At the end of each year, the RTT will have the opportunity to give a lecture/seminar in the department to which he/she belongs, explaining the teaching and research activities carried out.

At the end of each year, the RTT must also submit a report on the results of the research activity carried out and a report on the teaching activity to the head of the department concerned.

The duration of the contract established with the contractor shall not include periods of maternity, paternity or sickness leave in accordance with the legislation in force, at the request of the contractor.

The provisions set out in paragraphs 9, 10, 11 and 12 of Law 240/2010, which regulate the incompatibilities related to the legal status of researchers and the incompatibilities related to the full-time or fixed-term employment regime, also apply to RTTs. The RTT position is incompatible with any other kind of employment contract with public or private entities, the holding of research contracts (including at other universities or public research institutions), doctoral fellowships and any fellowship for any reason granted by national or foreign institutions. The only exception to this is international mobility for research purposes. During the entire duration of the contract, employees of public administrations will be placed on leave, without salary or social security contributions, or in an out-of-role position if such a position is provided for by their respective regulations.

In the event of early termination of the contract, the fixed-term researcher is required to provide at least 30 days' notice. In the event of failure to provide the requisite notice without adequate justification, the Administration shall be entitled to withhold from the RTT an amount equal to the remuneration for the period of notice not given.

In the event of the contract being terminated prematurely, the remuneration due shall be reduced in proportion to the number of months actually worked.

In the event of a fixed-term researcher terminating their contract prematurely, they are required to submit a report on the results of their teaching and research activities up to the date of termination.

Fulfilling the terms of the contract does not entitle the employee to any specific rights to access positions. It will, however, mean preferential treatment for access to public administration competitions.
